First Aid Course In Basic German Language

Many people have been in the situation, that they needed help from another one – for example at home, at work, at school or in their leisure time. In case of an accident you are legally obliged to help. Effective First Aid requires that you know what to do. Therefore every person who would like to get a driving license has to do a First Aid Course previously.

Everything you need to know about First Aid is explained and practiced step by step in this course. The course is in German. The course is aimed at people who have basic knowledge of German, but who need help in some situations.
